From Field to Fair, Agriculture is Featured

"From Field to Fair" will be the running theme this year at the South Carolina State Fair. Booths and scheduled events will emphasize ag education through fun activities that will introduce and connect youth to farming. Kids who complete a series of challenges will be recognized as "Ambassadors of Agriculture."

If it has to do with farming and agriculture, you'll find it at the fair. The SC Department of Agriculture is stationed in the Ellison Building this year, featuring local agricultural commodities like prize-winning produce, nuts, fruit, field crops, honey, wine, Christmas trees, and jumbo veggies. Renowned chefs will present cooking demonstrations using SC Certified produce. SCDA staff and SC commodity boards, will be on hand to share information about agricultural programs and services.

The State Fair has lined up a broad spectrum of fun and educational exhibits dealing with animals, wildlife and heritage. For a complete schedule of events during the fair, visit scstatefair.org.

- Sustainable Midlands will present "Pollinator Plants for Soil and Water Quality." Learn how bees and other insects are necessary for food production and how we can attract them.

- In the Ellison Building talented sand artists will turn 75,000 tons of sand into a massive ear of corn and farm scenes in celebration of the fair's agricultural roots.

- Balloonopolis will create a farm 30 feet across and 15 feet high, entirely out of balloons! The display in the Ellison Building will use 10,000 balloons of different shapes, sizes and colors.

- Local artist Ernest Lee, "The Chicken Man," will be painting a mural live on the grounds, Oct. 14-18, in addition to selling his popular chicken paintings and other pieces in the Small Stock Barn.

- The Commerford and Sons Petting Zoo will feature camels, elephants, and ponies, with pony rides to boot!

- Bill Coburn and his Border Collies will dazzle the crowds herding Katahdik sheep at Abernathy Arena on Oct. 21 and 22.

- Watch as "Swiftly" the swimming pig plunges into an 8-foot tank in the Nut Cattle Arena.

- The Creighton Shull Puerto Rican Paso Fino horse show presents its annual exhibition on Oct. 15. WIS-TV will broadcast the Celebrity Class at 6 p.m.

A two-day donkey and mule show will be held Oct. 16 and 17 in the Abernathy Arena. The Youth Horse Show will be Oct. 23 and 24. An open show will be held Oct. 25.

- The cattle barns will feature dairy cows Oct. 16-18 and beef cows Oct. 21-24. The swine arena will have pigs on Oct. 17-20, sheep on Oct. 22-23, and dairy goats on Oct. 24-25. Scholarships are offered in Junior Beef, Junior Dairy, Junior Swine, and equine competition. The Small Stock Building will feature caviars, doves, pigeons, rabbits and other animals.

South Carolina Soaked

Over the past couple of weeks here in South Carolina, I've watched, worried and prayed for friends and families who have been terribly impacted by the disaster of the excessive rainfall that pummeled our state. As we begin to pick up the pieces, our residents and farmers must be taken care of.

Our priority must always be to protect life and property in harm's way – and then try to resume some sense of normalcy as we press on. Hard to do sometimes.

I toured the state by air a few days ago and witnessed the shocking impact of the rainfall on our farms in the path of this storm – thousands of farm acres under water, farm buildings looking like islands in the water, and farm roads washed away. Many thanks to General Livingston of the National Guard and the Forestry Commission for providing the aircraft for me to do that. It made quite an impression on me to watch our National Guard and others in the Emergency Center Operations in action. Along with Clemson, SCDA has responsibility centered on animals and food supply in times of disaster.

Seeing the devastation was the first step in the long process of assessing the impact on agriculture in South Carolina. After completing the tour, I joined some of our staff from SCDA, the U.S. Department

Boonanza Returns

Boonanza will be held Friday, Oct. 30 from 5 p.m. - 8 p.m. in the south shed at the SC State Farmers Market located at 3483 Charleston Hwy., West Columbia.

There is a $2 charge for parking.

The event is growing, with more community participation this year. Children's activities include a bouncy house, face painting, balloon animals, pumpkin painting and games, plus a trunk or treat area.

A DJ will be playing festive music and food vendors will be selling kid-friendly items. Produce vendors in the north shed will be open late so folks can shop for pumpkins and fall produce.

For more information contact Elizabeth Shuler, 803-734-0328.

Curtin Farms Offers Festival on Oct. 24

Curtin Farms Fest will be on Saturday, Oct. 24 from 10 am to 4 pm. Featuring artisan crafts, local foods, and live music, Curtin Farms Fest is a community gathering for those who appreciate unique treasures and for those who have an interest in experiencing a relaxing, family-friendly day surrounded by rolling pastures.

"In 2014 we began Farm Agritourism by opening up Curtin Farms to the public and providing educational Harvest Farm Tours to area schools," said owner Cathy Curtain. "After an overwhelming response to our Harvest Farm Tours last fall and numerous requests from visitors, we have decided to host Curtin Farms Fest."

The festival provides a marketplace for handmade, hand crafted, and hand restored goods. It is the perfect environment for anyone who appreciates local, home-grown food and has a passion for unique artistry and music. Admission is $5 for adults, $1 for kids 12 and under. Kids two and under are admitted free. For more details call 803-831-1345 or visit www.curtinfarms.com.

Early Deadline Oct. 15 for NYFEA

Early bird deadline is Oct. 15 for the National Young Farmer Educational Association conference, which will be held Dec. 9-12 in Charleston. Go to www.nyfea.org to register and for more details.

of Agriculture, Farm Service Agency, and Clemson Extension Service to begin initial damage assessments.

At this point, conservative early estimates are that direct crop losses from the recent flood may exceed $300 million. We can only guess at what the total impact on our industry will be.

The storm has had a significant statewide effect. It appears that low lying farmland adjacent to Congaree and Black River systems, as well as smaller creeks, have been most severely impacted. The crops affected include peanuts, cotton, fall vegetables, soybeans, and some timber.

Poultry farmers immediately began working to repair access roads to get feed trucks to their flocks. Livestock and poultry assessments continue. Timber harvest will resume when the logging roads are passable. Long-term, this disaster will cause quite an income loss for local farmers and our rural counties.

As we all know, 2015 has been an exceptionally challenging year for farmers. We've dealt with a severe drought during the growing season and now excessive rainfall at harvest. Efforts will continue to gauge losses through the completion of harvest season.

We're going to work on behalf of our farmers through federal and state resources to determine the assistance that they should have access to. A request was sent almost immediately to the US Secretary of Agriculture for an agricultural disaster declaration to be made, which begins the process for federal assistance. The most important thing for farmers to do first is to know the details of their crop insurance policies and immediately contact their crop insurance agents prior to making any additional investments in their crop.

Farmers needing assistance should contact the local USDA FSA office serving their counties or Kenn Jameson with the state USDA FSA office at 803-806-3820 ext. 107 or kenn.jameson@sc.usda.gov. Additionally, they may contact SCDA in Columbia at 803-734-2210.

This is yet another tough challenge for South Carolina farmers. We always seem to manage through them, and I expect we will do the same this time.

On-line Ag Courses Available for Middle, High Schoolers

The Nelson Academy of Agricultural Sciences Online offers affordable, high quality agriculture courses to middle school and high school students across the state.

The unique learning format is ideal for students who do not have access to ag programs, explained instructor Kristen Reinhardt. She is in her first year with Nelson, whose goal is to have on-line ag teachers in every state.

Kristen Reinhardt

Reinhardt grew up in Brevard, N.C. on a farm that now produces beef, meat and eggs, and features a corn maze. She graduated from Clemson University with a degree in Agriculture Education and worked at LeMaster Dairy.

Nine years ago she began her career teaching Animal Science at Fort Mill High School, which has an active FFA chapter. A certified ag teacher, she also manages the school greenhouse. She lives in Rock Hill with her husband Chase, also a Clemson graduate, and their young son Boyd.

"I am excited about being a part of the Nelson Academy of Agricultural Sciences on-line family," Reinhardt said. "Since many schools no longer offer an ag program, the academy offers a way for students to take ag classes from certified ag teachers."

She has already had some students sign up and hopes many more will take advantage of the opportunity. Some students even take classes to prepare for livestock competitions, such as dairy judging. "A lot of jobs will be coming open in ag, and the on-line courses are a great way for students to get the background they need before going off to college."

The courses are open to students from all over South Carolina who don't have access to ag programs, or for those who want additional courses that may not be offered locally, she said. Many public schools, private schools and homeschools are unable to offer agricultural courses to their students. The academy provides high quality agricultural education classes to those who might not otherwise have the opportunity.

With agriculture and natural resources among the fields with the lowest unemployment rates, students can prepare themselves for rewarding careers. They can choose from 20 classes in animal and plant science, agribusiness, leadership, and marketing.

The courses offer a wide variety of interests from livestock and crop production to areas like agribusiness, horticulture and floriculture, greenhouse technology, agriculture marketing and agriculture communications. The curriculum is nationally accredited through AdvancEd and is approved by the National Council for Agriculture Education.

Livestock courses include specialties in beef, swine and sheep production, as well as equine and veterinary sciences. Farm business, financial planning and marketing are covered, plus food science, biotechnology and careers in agriculture. The courses are also suitable for adult ed students.

For information or to register, contact Ag Ed On-line Teacher Kristen Reinhardt at 828-553-1416 or Kristen.reinhardt@k12.nd.us. Visit www.AllAgOnline.com and click on any of the courses for a full description and lesson titles.

Sunbelt Expo Features SCDA Booth

The 38th Annual Sunbelt Agricultural Exposition in Moultrie, Ga. is packed with three days of non-stop action unveiling new technology in agriculture and rural living. More than 1,200 exhibitors, including the SC Department of Agriculture, will display products and welcome thousands of visitors to the 100-acre show site.

Crowned as North America's Premier Farm Show® and the largest Farm Show in America with field demonstrations, the Sunbelt Ag Expo brings together all segments of rural living from research and education to live farm harvest and agribusiness.

A highlight of the three-day show will be the announcement of the Swisher Sweet/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year Award. Tom Trantham, South Carolina's Farmer of the Year, is one of the 10 state winners vying for the prestigious title. The winner will be named during the annual Willie Withers Expo luncheon.

Food Dialogues Discuss Water Use

Across the country, there is a constant debate over the amount of water available for agriculture and other use. On Thursday, Nov. 12, the U.S. Farmers & Ranchers Alliance and S.C. Farm Bureau Federation will sponsor Food Dialogues, a discussion on water use in South Carolina, featuring farmers and experts on water.

During two separate panels, the following questions will be addressed:

What are the state's water needs? What options, such as the Surface Water Act of 2010, have been employed or evaluated to address those needs?

Is agriculture the biggest user of water in the state? Are there technologies we can employ to better manage water being used by agriculture? What more can agriculture, business and residents do to be more efficient users of this precious commodity?

Registration for Food Dialogues begins at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 12 at Brookland Baptist Banquet and Conference Center, 1066 Sunset Blvd. in West Columbia. For more information, go to http://bit.ly/FD_SouthCarolina, call (888) 25-USFRA (87372), or email info@fooddialogues.com.

'Making it Grow!' Features Agritourism Farms

On Oct. 20 SCDA Agritourism Director Jackie Moore will be on the ETV show "Making it Grow!" In addition to featuring agritourism farms, she will have as a guest, Gaie McLeod from McLeod Farms.

During the program they will talk about agritourism farms and about ETV's fall on-line auction, which is a major fund raiser for educational television. Moore said that 15 agritourism farms have donated items ranging from horseback rides for two on Saint Helena beach to corn maze adventures and Christmas trees.

Last spring the agritourism donations were the most clicked-on items during the whole campaign.

"Making It Grow!" airs at 7 p.m. on local ETV stations.
