New Look at the Market

The colorful new sign at the State Farmers Market in West Columbia reflects continuing improvements at the market. Open seven days a week, the market offers fresh produce, bedding plants and flowers, wholesale warehouses, and a Fresh on the Menu restaurant featuring delicious locally sourced foods.

Commissioner

Fresh Is Best

The summer season always seems to direct our taste buds toward a craving for fresh and seasonal produce. Personally, when the months of late spring and summer come around, I get a hankering for a Certified SC Grown juicy watermelon, a few perfectly yellow squash, some fresh zucchini, and crisp cucumbers. I had a peach last week so juicy I thought it was July.

Our Fresh on the Menu restaurant partnership program helps you easily find dining out options that feature South Carolina agricultural products and locally-grown produce. This program was launched back in 2008 and helps provide healthier, tastier food for you while supporting our local farmers and boosting the state's largest economic sector. Fresh on the Menu also offers an optimal channel of connection between you and the chef who prepares the tasty meal, as well as with the farmer who grows the food for the table.

In order to kick off our summer season, SCDA is adding a relatively unique promotion, called the Living Wall, to its Fresh on the Menu program. The Living Wall is a vertical wall in Marion Square in Charleston, which thrives with various produce, herbs, and plants. This natural monument serves to remind everyone this season of our locally grown produce offered in restaurants near you.

Ag + Art Tour Expands into a Month-Long Event

By Marsha Hewitt
Staff Writer

The hottest trend in agritourism involves active participation in activities on the farm.

This year's S.C. Ag + Art Tour offers 67 opportunities during the month of June for people to interact with farmers and artisans. That's right; not only do tour-goers get two activities at one location, but it's all free!

The tour started in 2012 in York County. It has expanded to include nine counties, most of which are north of I-20. It is now billed as the nation's largest free farm and art tour. In other words, no one else is doing it like South Carolina.

Ben Boyles, who heads the tour from his Clemson Extension office in York, said 6,000 people participated last year. Since then four new counties have been added, and the tour has expanded over a whole month.

The sites include established farms, new farms, educational sites, and farmers markets. At each location, art will be featured. The artisans range from weavers, painters, musicians, story tellers, metalworkers, and craftsmen to poets and singers. Some of the farms will offer value-added products, such as jarred and canned foods, honey, baked goods or even farm-fresh meals.

"The art can be very diverse; the sky's the limit," Boyles said. "We're encouraging a lot of hands-on demonstrations, which are more interactive." He added that when you have a schedule of events, it draws traffic, and people know what to expect.

Having artists on site during the targeted weekends adds a fun component that makes the tour a family event. People can choose which farms they want to visit, and which of the 120 artisans they want to see.

"The biggest complaint we had in the past was that people couldn't do everything they wanted. It was too much for one weekend, so now folks can spread out over the whole month," Boyles said.

Charleston Research Farm & Public Gardens Tour June 24

Clemson Extension and the Clemson Coastal Research and Education Center are sponsoring a behind-the-scenes tour of the research farm and public gardens on June 24 from 9:30 a.m. - 1 p.m.

The center, which includes 325 acres in addition to laboratories in the Department of Agriculture U.S. Vegetable Laboratory building, conducts applied research and programs on vegetables and specialty crops.

The research focus is on developing sustainable, efficient and economical vegetable production, along with conventional and organic pest management. Instruction and research experience are offered to graduate students. The team consists of two horticulturists, a plant pathologist and an entomologist.

The upcoming educational morning tour will include:

- Tractor ride tour of the farm;
- Updates on agricultural research projects by Clemson researchers;
- Master Gardener update on the Urban Research & Demonstration Area;
- Tour of the rain gardening and rainwater harvesting demonstration area;
- Beekeeping lesson by Charleston Community Bee Gardens beekeeper;
- Catered lunch including Frogmore stew and chicken bog.

Space is limited and pre-registration is required; the fee is $30/person. Contact Latresha Davidson at 843-722-5940 or Amy Dabbs at adabbs@clemson.edu.

Coastal Research and Education Center is located at 2865 Savannah Highway, Charleston.

Donations to Plant It Forward Top $550,000

Two more in-state companies have made significant donations to Plant It Forward SC, an initiative to help farmers overcome devastating losses due to flooding last October.

AT&T and Archer Daniels Midland Company each donated $10,000 in May. The total given by local businesses has now reached $550,660, which has been distributed in 528 awards.

Plant It Forward SC provides relief funds specifically for covering a portion of this year's seed costs, as well as hay losses from last fall.

"Archer Daniels Midland strives to make a positive difference in the communities where we live and work. We are especially focused on doing our part to help local farmers thrive, which is at the heart of everything we do," said David Douglas, commercial manager at the company's soybean processing facility in Kershaw.

The donation was given through ADM Cares, a social investment program that directs funds to social, economic and environmental progress worldwide. The program focuses on three areas: supporting the responsible development of agriculture, improving quality of life in local communities, and fostering employee giving and volunteer activities.

AT&T has a long history of community and philanthropic engagement. In South Carolina, the company's employees and retirees contributed more than 59,000 hours of personal time to community activities in 2015, worth more than $1.3 million.

"At AT&T, we are committed to helping connect people with opportunities for success," said Pamela Lackey, president of AT&T South Carolina. "While that often involves advanced technology, we also help meet specific community needs. For many farm families, the flooding may be the greatest challenge they have faced in generations. We are pleased to support the Plant It Forward program and help farmers recover from this economic disaster."

S.C. Agriculture Commissioner Hugh Weathers thanked both companies for their generous contributions. "AT&T has long provided service to South Carolinians and this further illustrates their commitment to serving the people of our state," he said. "Archer Daniels Midland is an integral part of the agribusiness industry and this donation shows their commitment to supporting farmers."

South Carolina Advocates for Agriculture reports that total agricultural losses from October's flooding are approaching $600 million.

Pulled Beef Brisket Sliders

5-6 pound beef brisket
2-3 tablespoon all-purpose seasoning
1 medium onion, sliced
2 cloves garlic, whole
4-ounce can diced green chilies

¼ cup liquid smoke
Slider buns
Barbecue sauce of your choice
Coleslaw of your choice

Preheat oven to 250 F. Trim excess fat off brisket, leaving about a quarter inch. Rub all-purpose seasoning all over the brisket. In a heavy baking pan lined with heavy foil – enough to completely cover the brisket on all sides – place onion slices, garlic and chilies. Lay the brisket, fat side up, on top of the vegetables. Sprinkle all over with the liquid smoke. Fold the foil over to tightly seal it around the meat, and place the pan in the center rack in the oven. Cook for 6-8 hours, until the brisket is fork tender and internal temperature in the thickest part of the beef is 180 F. Remove the brisket from drippings, and let cool on a cutting board for 20-30 minutes before shredding or slicing. Serve on buns with coleslaw and barbecue sauce. Serves 6-8.

Locals and visitors from all over are invited to socially interact with the Living Wall installation by downloading the Blippar app. Blippar lets your phone camera link you with information on the object you point it at. For dining customers, it lets you get close and personal with Fresh on the Menu chefs as you watch their videos and hear first-hand why they focus their menus on tasty, fresh, and seasonal produce.

In addition to this new and exciting app, Fresh on the Menu has its own app that offers a simple and free way to find restaurants that feature South Carolina's freshest foods. This app will locate restaurants near you and provide information so that you can easily find one of our local treasures. I have found it to be very helpful travelling across the state looking for those restaurants that support our farmers.

Currently 340 restaurants in South Carolina are part of our Fresh on the Menu program. Their menus encompass everything from fresh seafood to delicious variations of traditional Southern favorites. Fresh on the Menu restaurants are sure to please even the pickiest of eaters. During your summer travels, I encourage you to utilize our resources and seek out a Fresh on the Menu restaurant wherever you are.

Fresh on the Menu provides a unique opportunity to deepen your South Carolinian ties as you connect with farmers in an exceptional way. I hope that as you visit the Living Wall, travel around our state, and enjoy the summer days, you will support local farmers while enjoying a fresher, tastier, and healthier meal. After all, fresh is best!

SC Agritourism Director Jackie Moore said this will be her third year visiting farms on the Ag+ Art Tour.

She is thrilled that it will be spread out over four weekends instead of one.

"I could only visit about five farms a day, or 10 in a weekend. This year I hope to visit at least half of the farms on the tour," she said. Moore will take this opportunity to talk to farms that are open only for the tour and encourage them to think about being open throughout the year. Ag + Art is a great way for farms to increase their income by expanding into agritourism, she said.

One of the goals of the free, self-guided tour is to give people a better knowledge of what is produced on the farm. "This puts food and product with a face," Boyles explained.

Another goal is economic development. The tour brings new customers to the farm. When people enjoy their visit, they are likely to go to other farms and share their experience, he continued.

During the first weekend in June, the counties of Chesterfield, Darlington and Horry are on the tour. The following weekend includes Lancaster and York counties. Fairfield and Kershaw counties will be targeted on the third weekend, and Chester and Union counties will finish the month.

For details on the tour, which includes specific sites and artisans, visit www.AGandARTTour.com.

An Optimistic Peach Season Kicks Off with 'Official' First Pick

By Paige Robinson
SCDA Intern

S.C. Agriculture Commissioner Hugh Weathers kicked off the peach season at Watsonia Farms in Monetta with the first "official" pick of the season. "The peach trees are in full bloom and everyone is excited as the days are getting warmer, the sun is shining bright, and the smiles are getting bigger. Here in South Carolina, everything truly is just peachy," Weathers said.

South Carolina is the largest peach producing state on the East Coast and is second only to California nationally. Last year, South Carolina actually produced more than double the volume of peaches that Georgia produced. Our state's nickname, "The Tastier Peach State," came from the passion of South Carolina peach growers.

Farmers choose tree varieties for their locations to ensure the highest quality fruit. "We are off to a good start for the 2016 peach crop," said Matt Forrest, president of the SC Peach Council and co-owner of Dixie Belle Peaches. Chalmers Carr, president of Titan Farms, said producers are looking forward to a great peach season.

Joining Commissioner Weathers on the tour were S.C. House of Representatives members Tommy Pope, Bill Taylor, Ralph Kennedy and Shannon Riley. The delegation also visited Dixie Belle Farms in Monetta, Big Smile/Yonce and Sons in Johnston, as well as Titan Farms in Ridge Spring.

"Each farm brings a unique perspective to growing the tastiest, juiciest peaches in the country and these farms illustrate the diversity of agriculture in South Carolina," said Commissioner Weathers.

S.C. Junior Beef Round-Up

If you 4-Hers haven't already selected your show heifer or steer, now is the time. You need to start halter breaking your spring calf for the 30th Annual S.C. Junior Beef Round-Up to be held Aug. 5-7.

The round-up is the premier youth livestock expo held at the T. Ed. Garrison Arena. During the three-day event, youth will participate in a Cattleman's Contest and Showmanship Contest and compete for awards and scholarships. In recent years, the SC Junior Beef Round-Up has awarded nearly $8,000 in scholarships to deserving youth pursuing a degree after high school.

This year, we will be adding a Fitting Clinic and Fitting Contest, where youth can compete with a team to fit an animal. For added fun, nominate your mom and dad to see them show in the Ma & Pop Showmanship Contest, in conjunction with the hamburger supper on Saturday night of the event.

Contact Dr. Meghan Wood for details at mlmcpha@clemson.edu or register at www.clemson.edu/extension/4h/project_areas/ag_animals/livestock/youth_ls_beef.html.
