Living Wall Reminds Visitors to Eat Local

Staff photo

Russ Moore, Executive Chef of Slightly North of Broad in Charleston, proudly sources Certified SC Grown produce to serve in his restaurant.

As summer draws to an end, preparations are being made to move the Living Wall from its current site in Marion Square in Charleston to the State Farmers Market in West Columbia. The Living Wall thrives with various herbs and plants and serves to remind locals and visitors alike of the fresher, tastier dining experience found at our Fresh on the Menu restaurants.

Fresh on the Menu restaurants source at least twenty-five percent of their offerings from South Carolina farmers, and their chefs are committed to serving dishes that honor southern tastes mixed with new age flair. Currently there are 340 restaurants in South Carolina that participate in the program.

To find a Fresh on the Menu restaurant near you, download the Fresh on the Menu app or visit freshonthemenu.com.

Beekeeper Named South Carolina Farmer of the Year

Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo

Kerry Owen of Pickens has had a sweet ride as an innovative producer of farm-raised honey. He's a busy beekeeper who markets his own Bee Well brand of honey.

A different type of farmer, Owen markets honey, bees and beekeeping supplies. He keeps bees on 26 farms in South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia. He sells his honey to more than 400 stores throughout the Southeast. His beekeeping supplies provide both prospective and veteran beekeepers with everything they need to get into honey production.

As a result of his success as a honey producer and beekeeper, Owen has been selected as the state winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year award. He joins nine other individuals as finalists for the overall award that will be announced on Tuesday, Oct. 18 at the Sunbelt Expo farm show in Moultrie, Ga.

Owen is the first full time beekeeper to be named as a state winner of the Farmer of the Year award. He has created cooperative farming relationships with others for honey production and pollination. He keeps bees in Abbeville, Anderson, Oconee and Pickens counties in South Carolina, and in Transylvania County of North Carolina. His Georgia bee locations are near the towns of Wrens and Baxley.

Bees have a natural range of about 2-1/2 miles in a circle. So with 26 locations, his bees collect nectar and produce honey from more than 30,000 acres per year. As a migratory beekeeper, Owen moves his hives from south to north and generally follows spring-time blooming for the plants that provide nectar.

He started Bee Well Honey Farm & Supply Inc. as a family business from home.

From 2002 to 2006 he has held annual festivals on his farm aimed at educating the public about beekeeping.

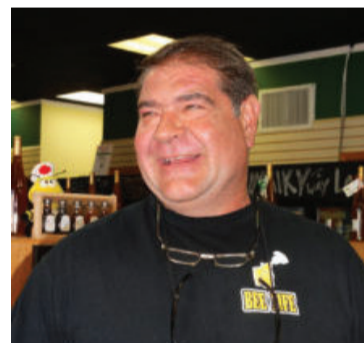

During these years, he ran his store from his farm before moving the store to town.

"We're into agritourism," says Owen. Customers can watch him extract honey, and he offers classes in making candles, and health and beauty products made from beeswax.

Owen was nominated for the honor by Lindsey Craig, Extension agent in Pickens. "Most people don't think of beekeeping and honey production as farming, but it is," says Craig.

As the South Carolina state winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo award, Owen will receive a $2,500 cash award and an expense paid trip to the Sunbelt Expo from Swisher International of Jacksonville, Fla., a $500 gift certificate from Southern States cooperative and a Columbia vest from Ivey's Outdoor and Farm Supply.

South Carolina has had two overall winners, Ron Stephenson of Chester in 1994 and James Cooley of Chesnee in 2013.

Back to School

School is back in session, bringing with it all of our busy schedules. We may have to sacrifice our carefree summer days, but we don't have to sacrifice healthy eating and locally grown produce with the hustle and bustle of every-day living.

Packing lunches at the Weathers household was always a challenge with three high school boys who had to make it through football practice on a bag lunch. Rather than a healthy menu our boys, like most, would have preferred leftover steak and potatoes with a slice of red velvet cake. Blanche did her best to provide healthy, filling lunches but her one concession was a single Hershey's Kiss, a reminder that she loved them.

At the SC Department of Agriculture, we try to make healthy choices easily accessible for everyone, and schools are a top priority. The Farm to School program, started in 2011, aims to increase the number of South Carolina grown fruits and vegetables in schools, promote healthy eating habits and provide nutrition and agriculture education, all while supporting local farmers. A total of 120 schools participate in the program statewide. Ask your child's school if they offer Certified SC Grown options on their menu, and if they don't, request them!

'Brewery and the Feast' features Sammy Kershaw

Brewery and the Feast is a unique culinary and craft beer experience featuring some of the best offerings in primitive smoked barbecue and specialty craft beer. It will be held Aug. 27, starting at 2 p.m. at Denver Downs Farm in Anderson. Hosted by Denver Downs, the event will continue into the evening with a night of phenomenal live music performances, featuring country music superstar Sammy Kershaw. Some of the region's top breweries will be on site sampling specialties, seasonal and a variety of your favorite craft beer, while some of the nation's top pit masters smoke up savory samples of smoked meats. Tickets are limited for this event. Prices are available on the website: <http://www.denver-downsfarm.com>.

Back to School

We also want to help parents who pack lunches for their children easily find the freshest, tastiest ingredients to give them a Certified SC Grown lunch. Visit our website at www.agriculture.sc.gov, and click on the "Where to Buy Local" tab on the home page. This link will provide a listing of the certified roadside markets near you, information about our state farmers markets, and links to Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) for your county.

Here are few tips for packing a Certified SC Grown lunchbox:

- Always pack at least one Certified SC Grown product. You can rest assured that it will be both healthy and tasty!
  - When packing any sort of condiments or meat, be sure to include an ice pack or something capable of keeping the food cold in order to avoid spoilage.
  - Also, make your child's lunch the night before, not only to save time in the mornings, but also to make sure that the food is chilled adequately before you pack it.
  - Compost away any leftovers that your child brings home, because by that point, it has reached room temperature and will not be good for another meal.
- Finally, remember to pack smart, pack local, and eat fresh this school year, even out of a lunchbox. After all, fresh is best!

Fall Ag Tour Goes to Fort Mill

The S.C. Agricultural Council is holding its Fall Agricultural Tour on Friday, Sept. 16.

The daylong event in and around Fort Mill will start with a tour of Anne Springs Close Greenway, a 2100 acre nature preserve, before moving on to The PuckerButt Pepper Company, home of the Carolina Reaper, the world's hottest pepper.

After eating lunch at Captain Steve's, the tour will continue to The Peach Stand for some ice cream or other goodies and then on to SC Truffieres & Howell Specialty Farmz. The final stop on the tour will be at Benford Brewing Company in Lancaster.

The cost is $55, which includes lunch, beverages, and snacks. Participant check-in will be at 7:15 a.m. at the South Carolina Farm Bureau, 724 Knox Abbott Drive, Cayce. The bus will depart at 7:30 a.m. and return to the Farm Bureau building by 5:45 p.m.

The deadline to register is Sept.13. The tour is open to the public until the bus is filled, with priority given to council members and their guests.

For more information about the Ag Council tour, contact Steve Slice, at 803-360-2845 or scagriculturalcouncil@gmail.com. More information about each stop can be found on the SC Agritourism website at scfarmfun.org.

SOUTH CAROLINA FFA ASSOCIATION

FFA Summer Camp

Over the years thousands of FFA members across South Carolina have attended camp to play, challenge themselves, make friends and develop as leaders. Those past campers loved every minute of camp. Many of them grew to be pillars of the community; some even came back to serve as counselors. All of them will tell you that the memories from camp will stay with them forever.

The SC FFA Center at Cherry Grove opened in the 1950s and is the kind of camp that generations of FFA members have imprinted in their memories as pure and wholesome fun, the sort of camp that remains the way it was when things were still easy-going, like scorekeeping a kickball game or sitting by the campfire.

During the summer of 2016 FFA campers enjoyed zip-lining down the high ropes, swimming in the pool, paddling a kayak in the ocean, trudging back to a cabin after an endless dodge ball game, sitting by the camp fire and giving their all in the yearly Blue and Gold "War." These activities were combined with a nightlife package of Alabama Theater, Grand Prix and Broadway at the Beach.

Summer camp is about building self-sufficiency and confidence. It's one of the few things left where campers can have an experience everyone can relate to and share. One of those constants is the friendships made, which campers forge in shared moments of independence and maintain off-season via texting, Facebook, and other social media.
