Make Yourself Known

How are you doing with your New Year's resolutions? Even if you don't have a long list of self-improvement goals, let me challenge you to one important task: make yourself known by participating in the 2017 Census of Agriculture. More than 3 million census forms were mailed out in December 2017, and they're due back from producers by February 8th, 2018. You may also fill out the Census online at www.agcensus.usda.gov. Just be sure to have your 17-digit survey number that you received in the mail with your Census paperwork.

For a historical perspective, the first Census was conducted in 1840 in 26 states and the District of Columbia. It included an inventory of the principal classes of domestic animals, the production of wool, the value of poultry, the value of dairy products, and the production of principal crops. The number of farms and the acreage and value of farmland were first included in 1850, and in 1880 information on farm tenure was first secured.

Daily Market News Reports

Do you know a rising high school junior or senior who has an interest in pursuing agriculture as a career? It's not too early for them to start thinking about the 2018 SC Commissioner's School for Agriculture (SCCSA), which will take place July 21-27 at Clemson University.

SCCSA is a partnership between the SC Department of Agriculture (SCDA) and Clemson University's College of Agriculture, Forestry, and Life Sciences.

The program provides a challenging and enriching college-based experience for participants through a variety of workshops, field studies, and laboratories. The academic curriculum integrates subject matter from a variety of disciplines related to agriculture and natural resources.

"For 14 years, the Commissioner's School has provided students with invaluable agriculture experience and helped them decide to study some aspect of agriculture in college," said SC Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers. "This important program is one of the ways the Department of Agriculture works to secure a strong future for our industry."

This premiere career and leadership program has graduated over 500 students from 15 states since 2004. Fifty-nine percent of these graduates have pursued ag-related studies or careers.

Here's another interesting tidbit about the Census of Agriculture: between 1954 and 1974, the U.S. Census Bureau conducted the Census of Agriculture in years ending in "4" and "9." Following the Census of Agriculture in 1978, the Census Bureau and the U.S. Department of Agriculture decided to conduct the census in years ending in "2" and "7". That's why we're having a Census of Agriculture in 2017. I guess someone had an issue with 4 and 9.

I've always had an interest in history and how it influences decision-making. The Census of Agriculture is important because it looks at land use and ownership, operator characteristics, production practices, income and expenditures and many other areas. Compiling this data helps measure trends and new developments in the agricultural sector of our nation's economy. Gathering the most comprehensive census data will ensure that everyone from lawmakers to individual farm operators will be able to make informed decisions and protect the future of American agriculture.

Make yourself known. If you don't get counted, you could be negatively impacting South Carolina, and I know you don't want to do that. Complete your Census of Agriculture by February 8. This is one resolution we can all feel good about crossing off our lists.

Applications Available

"Commissioner's School for Agriculture is where I found my passion for helping farmers tell their stories, which is why I'm pursuing Communication with an emphasis on Agriculture at Clemson University," said Carey Herndon, a freshman at Clemson University and a 2016 graduate of SCCSA.

Applications are available online at Clemson.edu/cafls/sccsa and must be postmarked by April 13, 2018. Sounds like a long time from now, but the application is detailed, and the selection process is competitive.

Another great way to support SCCSA is through a financial contribution. The School depends on tuition dollars and the generous support of donors to keep participant costs to a minimum. Contact Margaret Owens (see box on front page) to learn more about making a gift.

Agritourism Event

Old Smokehouse Day

at the L. W. Paul Living History Farm
Jan. 20
9am – 4pm

Visit the L. W. Paul Living History Farm to celebrate the pig! Winter was the time of year for curing pork on the farm and a season when the family was dependent on home preserved foods during the cold winter months.

Volunteers will demonstrate how foods were preserved and prepared on the farm during the early twentieth century in Horry County. Demonstrations will include smoking and salting meat, cooking on a wood stove, making lye soap, grinding grits, blacksmithing and other traditional farm activities.

The farm re-creates what life was like on the one-horse family farm in Horry County between the years of 1900 and 1955. This event is free and open to the public.
