Southeastern Wildlife Expo: Focus on Food

Friday, Feb. 16 -- Sunday, Feb. 18

It just gets better and better each year. The Southeastern Wildlife Exposition is now in its 36th year, drawing upwards of 40,000 people from across the region.

This celebration of fine art, sporting demonstrations, food and drink provides the public with easy access to wildlife and nature conservation programs. Around 500 vendors offer a huge array of products, including paintings, sculptures, decoys, camping, fishing, shooting, kayaks, hand-crafted duck decoy and turkey calls, hand-crafted knives, dough bowls, and jewelry.

For the past nine years, the SC Department of Agriculture has had a significant presence at SEWE. Once again the focus is on food; specifically, the Certified South Carolina kitchen and cooking demonstrations, plus 23 Specialty Food vendors under the big tent in Marion Square.

This year the Certified SC kitchen features food experts Matt Lee and Ted Lee, known to food enthusiasts as The Lee Brothers. In addition to kicking off the cooking demonstrations with one of their own, these nationally known, locally grown culinary experts will host all the Fresh on the Menu demonstrations.

Three of the state's four Chef Ambassadors will prepare special dishes throughout the weekend. The Chef Ambassador program recognizes chefs from the upcountry to the coast who embody the best of South Carolina's food scene, both in the quality of their provisions, and their dedication to using healthy, locally-grown ingredients. Cookbooks that whet your appetite for Certified SC cuisine will be available.

Be sure to download the Certified SC Fresh on the Menu app to locate these chef's restaurants and hundreds of others that feature South Carolina's delicious culinary offerings. While you're in the Certified SC tent, take a moment to view the Roots of Your Food videos and join us in saluting the farmers of South Carolina. A couple of these farmers will participate in the cooking demonstrations throughout the weekend, so you may have the opportunity to thank them in person. Admission to the wildlife expo is $25 for Friday; $25 for Saturday; $15 for Sunday; or $50 for all three days. The SCDA events are open to all ticket holders. Visit sewe.com for details and to order tickets.

Another Memorable Visit with Sonny Perdue

Late last month my good friend Sonny Perdue, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, made his second visit to South Carolina since becoming our nation's top agriculture officer. You may recall that Secretary Perdue visited my neck of the woods – Bowman – during his August trip to Charleston to view the eclipse.

This time he spent time at two farms in the Midlands – City Roots urban farm in Columbia and Manchester Farms in Hopkins and Gadsden. Secretary Perdue told me that he was interested in seeing new and innovative farming practices, and thanks to our gracious hosts, that's exactly what he saw.

The morning began at City Roots, where owner Eric McClam gave us a tour of his greenhouses filled with organic microgreens. Eric also informed the Secretary of the number of USDA programs that had been very helpful to his operation. After the tour, Secretary Perdue held a listening session with about 30 farmers and industry representatives to hear their questions and concerns about the upcoming Congressional Farm Bill, specialty crops, farm labor, conservation and agriculture grants.

The two Secretaries of Agriculture look at microgreens with Eric McClam, right.

Later we toured two separate facilities of Manchester Farms in Hopkins and Gadsden. Manchester Farms owners Brittney and Matt Miller showed us the step-by-step process of raising and processing quail and quail eggs and emphasized that her process includes no antibiotics. As a trained veterinarian, Secretary Perdue had numerous questions about the quail.

Gov. Henry McMaster and Congressman Joe Wilson joined us for part of the tour, and more than 20 farmers and community leaders came for a lunchtime roundtable session with Secretary Perdue. Our discussion covered immigration, dairy, cotton ginning, disaster funding and commodities.

Secretary Perdue is a good personal friend of mine, and he's also a good friend to agriculture in South Carolina and the United States. I am very proud of his listening and leadership and also of our farmers who presented their issues to him very precisely and passionately. I appreciate the time and preparation of our hosts – Eric McClam and the Millers – for making Secretary Perdue's second SC visit so memorable.

EQUUS Film Festival Returns to Camden

The EQUUS Film Festival is returning to Camden on Feb. 23-25 for the third year of the Camden Tour Stop. The festival week will include about 50 films at Camden's vintage Little Theatre, plus student activities, equine art displays, book signings and a variety of activities on the Town Green. The films will be shown on Friday and Saturday from noon until 9:30 p.m., and on Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

Friday, Feb. 23 is designated as Military Appreciation Day with special film screenings for military personnel. Saturday will include activities for the young (and the young at heart) on the Town Green during The Marley Project Literary Round Up.

Sunday's theme is Best of the Fest, with selected favorite films from past festivals, highlights from the local Camden Film Block (The True Story of Sunshine Numbers, Fast Women's Minimambo: The MiniMovie and The Edge: Bruce Anderson - Natural Humanship) and the new Spotlight Rescue Series.

The 2017 series shines a light on rescue situations from across the country, with local stories about Heaven's Gait Horse Sanctuary and Nature's View. The series, produced by JA Media Productions, won the Best Documentary Series and Horse Hero Awards at the 2017 EQUUS Film Festival in New York.

EQUUS Film Festival founder Lisa Diersen will bring winning films from the New York event, including feature films, documentaries, shorts, videos and commercials. Co-organizer Diana DeRosa will conduct panel discussions with visiting and local equine experts for broadcast on the EQUUS VOD channel.

The Camden Tour Stop is hosted by The Marley Project Inc., a local non-profit dedicated to equine awareness, education and advocacy, with support from the City of Camden and Kershaw County Tourism Partnership.

Animal Behaviorist Temple Grandin to Speak to Cattlemen

CLEMSON—Best-selling author and animal behaviorist Dr. Temple Grandin, whose life was the subject of an award-winning movie, will be the featured guest at the SC Cattlemen's Association meeting on April 5 and 6.

Dr. Grandin has a Ph.D in Animal Science from the University of Illinois and has written several books, including "Thinking in Pictures" and "Animals Make Us Human." Today half the cattle in the United States are handled in facilities she has designed. Her first session will begin at 1:30 on April 5, followed by a cattle handling demonstration at 3:30 p.m. A community-wide presentation will be held at 7 p.m.

The keynote speakers on April 6 are Dr. Don Ball and Dr. Garry Lacefield, who will discuss forage opportunities. The meeting will also feature a silent auction, awards of excellence, four youth scholarships, a raffle, and the general meeting.

Nominations for the cattlemen's awards of excellence are due by March 15. Applications for youth scholarships are available on the website, www.sccattle.org. Early bird registration of $60 per person is available until March 15.

The Lee Bros. Charleston Kitchen Pickled Shrimp with Fennel and Chile

Ingredients

- 1 tablespoon plus 1½ teaspoons kosher salt
- 2 pounds large (21 to 25 count) shrimp, peeled and deveined
- ½ cup white wine vinegar
- 1 cup fresh lemon juice (from about 7 lemons)
- 1 small fresh bird or Serrano chile (green or red), sliced very thinly on the bias
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 small white onion, thinly sliced
- 1 small fennel bulb, thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon chopped fennel fronds

Directions:

Fill a medium stockpot with 2 quarts of water, add 1 tablespoon of the salt, and bring to a boil over high heat.

Prepare an ice bath in a large bowl. When the salted water boils, turn off the heat, add the shrimp, stirring them once or twice to distribute them, and cook until uniformly pink-opaque and just done, about 1 minute. With a slotted spoon, transfer the shrimp to the ice bath. Reserve 2 cups of the shrimp-cooking liquid in a medium bowl.

With the slotted spoon, transfer the shrimp to a plate lined with a double thickness of paper towels. (Don't dump the ice bath yet!) Add the vinegar, lemon juice, and chile to the bowl with the shrimp-cooking liquid and whisk in the remaining 1½ teaspoons salt and the sugar until dissolved. Set this bowl of brine in the ice bath (add more ice to the bath if needed), and whisk until the liquid cools to room temperature.

Dump the ice bath and use the cold large bowl to toss the shrimp, onion, fennel slices, and fennel fronds. Pour the cooled brine over the shrimp. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for about 1 hour, tossing once, until chilled and ready to serve. (Pickled shrimp will keep in the refrigerator for about 2 days.)
